TIMPVIEW TALON

1980-81 TIMPVIEW HIGH SCHOOL: Provo, Utah; Principal Dolan Condie
Editors Patty Porter, Anne Woodbury; Assistant Editor Nancy Anderson
Advisors Linda Peterson, Karl Barksdale; Representative Bill Baker

A new generation comes forth,
A legend foreseen through past eyes,
Yesterday's voices still crying from the dust.
Life is created by these cries.
Today stands stately, proud and tall.
Yesterday, hesitant to make good-byes
Ever changing, ever lasting,
A world of difference survives...

ACHIEVEMENT

A New Generation Comes Forth...

As the seasons changed, a new generation of students entered Timpview High School with the sweet promise of success. After vacationing in Utah because of high gas prices, waterskiing at Lake Powell and Deer Creek, suntanning at Deseret and "the club," even working students tried once again to settle into the regularity and confines of a classroom situation.

Students registered for school on August 27th and wondered why they had pre-planned their schedule: when all of the desired classes had been filled as usual, like Gillespie's Parent Ed. and Coach Kauo's Tutorial History. Some of the remaining classes were Gladys Nelson's A.P. English, Coach McKay's Drivers Ed., and Garth Gooch's A.P. Calculus. Nevertheless, students quickly settled into school and were proud to be a part of Timpview's 1980-1981 generation.

Once Upon A Time

Once upon a time, the girls at Timpview High School decided that if they ever were to go out with the man of their dreams, they would have to do the asking. And so the preference tradition began. Mr. Lindstrom made a forceful announcement that no boy was to accompany a girl to the dance unless invited with a proper preference invitation. "Rock Candy" provided the music for the dance held in the commons. At intermission slides of skiing were viewed by students who wondered what skiing had to do with the theme, "Once Upon A Time." Chris Young, Todd Carver and Kevin Stevenette proved to be Timpview's most preferred men (men?). The dance was enjoyed and girls wondered if their knights in shining armor would ever take them out again.

Halloween '80 at Timpview was a treat and having fun was no trick. Students "dressed up" for a dance. Jamie Christensen and the boys in their togas ran a close second to the guys dressed as cheerleaders. Vincent Price scared everyone to death in the G rated movie "Terror in the Wax Museum." Students dunked for apples during lunch and the art students displayed carved pumpkins in the commons.

Hey, don't I look PERT TY?

A fiddler on the roof, sounds crazy no?" For students in the play, "Fiddler on the Roof" it didn't sound a bit crazy. Mr Brower really outdid himself this year in tackling the first musical Timpview had ever done. The performers also set a tradition for others to live up to. John McKeel was the lovable "Tevye". Jenny Caneen played the hen-pecking wife "Golde". It seemed that the play was chosen for these two instead of them being chosen for the play! All of the couples in the play did a superb job. Surprisingly enough though, none of the couples started any romances. Another tradition bites the dust! The whole cast worked very well together both on the stage as well as behind with the difficult set changes. The play came off exceptionally well and the "tradition" of excellence was set.

GIRL'S DAY

One day a year the girls have the day all to themselves. The girls all wore dresses and at half-day all the mothers came to join their daughters. The mothers and daughters gathered in the auditorium for a speaker. Dr. Reid Bradford honored us as the speaker. He stressed good family relations and encouraged self appreciation with his story of Johnny Lingo and his Ten Cow wife. Student Government furnished the refreshments and decorations for the day. The mothers and daughters ended the day with pictures taken of them both.

And now for our next contestant

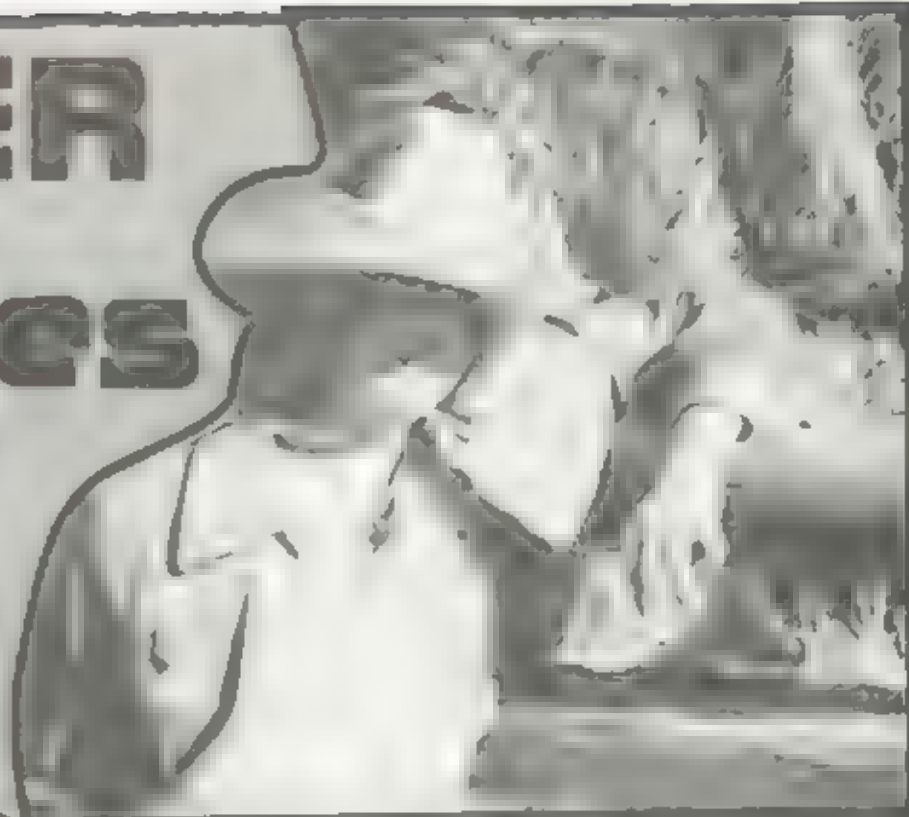

Timoview had its own slave auction

The boys also had the day to themselves. Glen Tucket, head coach at B Y U, brought part of his sports program. The boys learned about how different sports were played and how they fit into the B Y U program. A demonstration was given by the mens gymnastics and wrestling teams. Several of the football players were on hand to answer questions or sign autographs whichever was preferred. Student government furnished refreshments.

On Boy's Day the Three Stooges, Larry, Curly and Moe, attended our school

CHRISTMAS

Christmas comes but once a year bringing with it joy and cheer—unless of course you didn't have a date for the Christmas Dance. Of course, for those who went to the dance, things weren't all that "holly jolly" either. It seemed some people's dates disappeared to be found later talking to someone else's escort. This dance was the first combined dance of Timpview and Provo High, which made it interesting to see who brought what. The programs were green and the punch was orange. If that's any help. The dance and the assembly of Christmas music will always be alive in Timpview's memories (Memories of $100.)

Sadie Hawkins was not a square dance (even if some were asked to it) but rather it was one of Timpview's finest dances because all the girls in the school got their chance to ask any guy they could get their hands on. (Unfortunately when it comes to finding guys to get your hands on Timpview is a bad place to look ) Once a girl got her guy, it was off to the dance for a night's fun including Timpview's own version of Wedding Chapel. ## SENIOR ASSEMBLY

Teresa Crowley and Lynne Wilkins flaked out

Kip Rasmussen loved the soft life

The 1981 Senior Class decided to have a different kind of Senior assembly this year. They wanted to show how they really felt about things and what really happened to people. Kip Rasmussen and Teresa Crowley portrayed a set of twins while Mike Ward and Michelle Duty played their friends. The foursome were inseparable as freshmen, yet as they got older they all drifted apart. In the end they realized who their best friends really were. The Seniors unwittingly did follow tradition, they put on a great assembly.

Gina Larson wanted a cost party

Dave Newborn wanted a toss up

The Junior class was exceptionally talented this year and the Junior Assembly showed it. Gina Larsen set the mood with her song, "I'm the Greatest Star." Judy Ryan also sang the beautiful song, "Evergreen." In the tradition of true stars, Laureen West played the guitar and sang a song that she had written. A barbershop quartet also performed. The members included Ron Baird, McKay Bahr, John Hickenlooper and Rob Dahl. A new comedy team of Baird and Newborn made their debut in the assembly. Dave Newborn also did Solo. He stole the show with his expert juggling and his telling of Provo High jokes. The award winning Sunset Cloggers also performed for us. Many of the members were from Timpview and the Studentbody really enjoyed their performance. Scott Larson made an exceptional M.C. and Gina Larson finished the assembly with an encore of "I'm the Greatest Star."

"Hearts, Tarts and Jesters" marked the annual Valentines dance. Red and white streamers were draped throughout the commons and the walls sported many different hearts of varying sizes. The band "Jester" kept the sweethearts entertained and dancing until the magic stroke of eleven (ten for the Freshmen). "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" was the theme of the dance which turned out to be one of the best attended of the year. Student Government provided the "Hearts and Tarts" and the sweethearts provided a great time.

Timpview students had one track minds in spring

Steve Olsen branched out into spring

Spring fever begins at Timpview just as soon as the basketball tournament ends. The seniors start counting weeks, days, hours and minutes until graduation. There are several signs of spring at Timpview. The commons becomes more crowded during class periods as the temperature rises. The yearbook staff roams the halls looking for pictures to fill this page with spring activities.

The best sign of spring was B Y U's basketball team handing UCLA their worst loss in 17 years.

Spring was a time for rejuvenated spirits, a time for baseball, track and tennis.

March 20th marked the first day of Spring but Timpview students had spring fever long before then. As soon as it stopped snowing, Mike Holm and Steve Oisen hit the course for several rounds of golf. The boys and girls basketball teams finished the year qualifying for the state tournaments. Seniors began to count down the days until graduation. The music department had region and all-state. The Drama and Forensics teams worked to reach their goal of state once again. Drill Team Formal fell on Friday the 13th but it was not an unlucky dance. The theme was "The Best of Times" and it was just that. The Seniors got together for the Senior Dinner Dance at Hotel Utah. The very appropriate theme was "Farewell to Kings". Junior Prom rolled around with a theme of "Into the Night". The royalty were King Karl Weenig, Queen, Julianna Oaks, Attendants Katrina Best, Paul Crawford, Allyson Stevenett and Rob Young. Spring gave students a chance to show their spirit.

The freshmen had a dance of their very own this year. It was the yearly computer dance. Each of the freshmen had a sheet of the computer test, and he or she had a partner. The computer then matched up the sheets. When the fated night arrived, the freshmen lined up to see what awaited them for the evening. The dances alternated every other one between computer and free choice. The freshmen came back from B.Y.U. to be the DJ for the evening. There were many jokes mixed with laughter but overall everyone had a good time.

Dennis Harris didn't realize his own strength

Class? What's class?" asked Tracy

Phil Rich explained the facts of life

There were several places at Timpview for students to "hang out." The library had two sets of "hangers," those who studied and those with magazines and newspapers. Some students preferred the Coke and candy machine area affectionately known as "the perch." This year's new hangout could find debaters, dramatists and musicians in the new auditorium wing. There, those elect few hung out in private offices equipped with mirrors, stereos, bean bag chairs and Paul White's refrigerator and bed. What?

Chris Peterson and Dave Piggot thought school meant Readin', Ritin', and Rock-n-Roll

Some students as well as members of the faculty did everything to prevent getting Any-idea

VARIETY....*

Tom Christensen was outstanding

Timpview had all kinds of people — tall, short, etc. But more interesting than their shape (some shapes are definitely more interesting) were their personalities and their clothes. Some people caused many problems and got into tight situations and some got into tight jeans. There were clowns who entertained us in the commons without even trying. And there were clowns who tried to entertain us but failed (Student Governments noontime activities) (This was written by one of the clowns from Student Government) We had the ciphers who walked the halls alone and we had the clicks who sat and talked only with groups of eight or less.

CALCULATOR CROWD

Like other calculator

Tammie took her temperature

Still day  $2 + 2 = 6$

Found your match yet, Loren Bryner?

How many ping pong balls would it take to fill the Earth? What is the size of the flame of a candle? What is the wind velocity of an unladen swallow? It was questions such as these which tickled the craniums of our fabulous calculator crowd ... no longer frowned upon for wearing calculators on their belts. A new kind of calculator was introduced and worn this year, not on the belt but on the wrist. It not only told time, but had a stopwatch and an alarm. Today's brains experienced a new freedom as they were allowed to enter the social world. But they still remained true to their brains and their studies first.

What is this?" asked Del

Changing was quite a task for Heidi Kirk

She couldn't find her Algebra

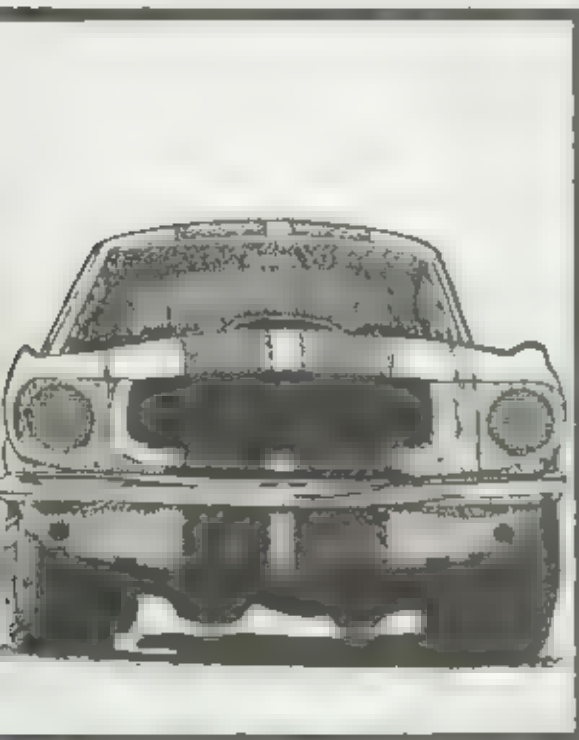

Heidi said she was a bit of a mess

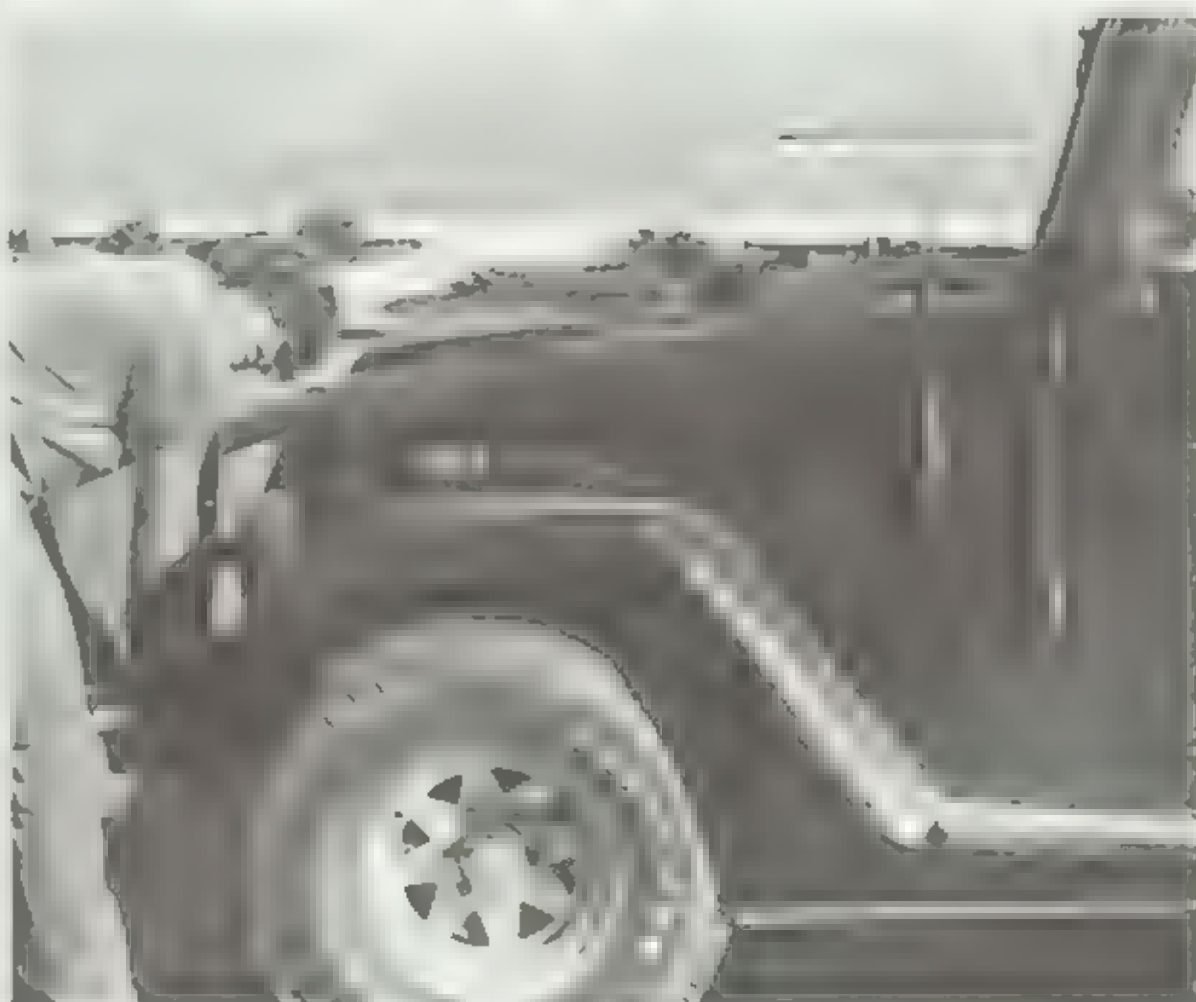

There were a few people at Timpview who were set apart from the rest by where they parked as well as what they parked. These people had more pride than to drive to school in the family station wagon. They had something faster and usually better to look at. Whether it was a modified pickup or a restored 58 vette it was nice to have something that could wake you up before you got to school

THE BIG APPLE: STUDENT GOVERNMENT

In past years, the Student Government Class has received a reputation for sitting in the Commons. But that was not to happen in '81 because the creative minds in the class thought up so many ideas that it kept everyone busy almost all the time. For example, the class made hundreds of pom poms for Homecoming, a project so simple anyone could have done it (well, almost anyone. Roger Layton's looked more like an airplane than a pom). But all-in-all, the entire class worked hard to make it the greatest year ever.

Stephanie Freeman ruled over the paper.

The posters advertising school events were made in School Spirit's own secret hide-out located above the wrestling room (no longer a secret). They were also in charge of the marquee, a task which often went thankless especially when the Administration had to censor announcements. (What's wrong with "But Puppies"?). What really upset the Club was the time their inkers (paints) were used to paint an unofficial mural on the gym floor.

On the good side, School Spirit hosted the Halloween Dance (and Student-Government activities).

"Disposable, plasticized diapers, particularly Pampers, are a major factor causing diaper rash..." If this piece of evidence sounds a little confusing, you are in the same boat as the majority of Varsity debate teams. The Timpview team of Morris and Lambert read this as the introduction to their Airbags case. Timpview did exceptionally well this year (as usual) and had some interesting experiences, especially on the overnight tournaments. The Dallas airport will never recover after the team discovered the "Who shot J.R." posters. Virginia Slims Billboards will forever more have an association with Clark Fisher. The team also panted the "Van" towards the Loyola-Red and Swing and went like "Heck!" Peltzman showed up first in Dallas but Loyola marked his return visit. This year was the first one in the new Auditorium Wing. Offices were delegated out and "musical offices" began. In the midst of the shuffle several interesting discoveries were made. One was Varsity the "Mousecott" who resided in the garbage can and dined on cocaine. Another discovery was that the ceiling fell if you slammed the door, but if you slammed the door the door didn't open again. But the hostages did manage to make it home in time for Thanksgiving dinner. As one final underview, The Timpview Team united together under their new coach and again proved superiority.

WEATHER ?!

What's in the weather? Bright and sunny unless it rains, if you're worried ask the weather man whether the weather will wither your weather vane. Chuckle of the day: Ha ha ha!

Journalism was very concerned with social issues such as the situation of Timpview's Subterranean Mass Transit System, the trash in the Commons and the junkie rodents in the auditorium. They tried not to work themselves into a pickie and to keep the conversation kosher. (It's a pun, get it?) The main activity in journalism was telling private jokes and then getting a letter from Debbie Nisen who always tried to keep herself above the ill humor. After the lecture, the class would start mutilating Teresa Crowley's folders. (Just kidding, not really!) One person's (no name mentioned Tracy Duke) job was to censor what everyone else wrote. Even so, they still managed to get a creative paper out.

Literary Magazine

Two out of three isn't bad

The purpose of the Literary Magazine was to record and honor the best academic works of the year. It served as a sort of intellectual memory for the school, and as a showcase for the administration. The magazine was put together by the Creative Writing Class. How Miss Frahm kept her sanity through the year of creative people, we may never know. But she did. (Whether or not the kids did is another story. Roger Layton is a prime example.) They still managed to produce another high quality Literary Magazine for Timpview.

This years yearbook was infected by a new idea, organization. To organize their organization they had a meeting to explain a new system of meetings after which they met again to find out why the meetings weren't working. Eventually everything fell apart and went into chaos and the staff got back to work. Well, some of them got to work but as usual some didn't and on deadline days came the usual panic and rush across the school to Mrs. Oldroyd's room to see if she could make sense of the copy. And of course when you needed a photo assignment, you had to go to the photo room, the photo room was too serious because you're reading this. Rob Young almost didn't live to read this. He risked life and limb battling carnivorous chickens to complete his photo assignments. Meanwhile back at school Ann and Patty worked many long hours to insure that this book would be the best. Patty faced unbelievable odds trying to keep the rest of the staff out of her desk. Ann had a simpler task but even so she still had to convince some of the staff that the plants in the Art room wouldn't eat them.

Surprise! Timpview school was not kept clean by little elves! Although seldom seen, those responsible for our tidy school were human beings nicknamed "custodians". They had many talents including fancy maneuvering to stay invisible. They had physical stamina, good memories (which keys fit where), and could put up with our garbage.

Our lunch ladies were really great this year. Not only did they spend six hours daily on our lunches but they stayed active through the hours. One filled her time as a medical secretary. Another had three missionaries to support and worked in a beauty shop. Another was busy with her kids. Yes, indeed, no matter what they serve us, Timp is proud of our lunch ladies.

Much to the students' disappointment, daredevil bus drivers got students to school amidst rain, hail, and snow. To make the job more difficult, they had to fight off irate and obnoxious students. Another obstacle was trying to keep on the other side of town from Lynne Wilkins and her car. Our calm, cool, and collected bus drivers drove us wild.

COMPONENTS

Appointed Offices

A lot of us wondered what Supreme Court was and who was on it. Supreme Court consisted of Quintin Gray, Rob Burr, and Eric Bluth. Really, the main objective of having it was just for experience, although quite a bit was accomplished. Supreme Court was in charge of running all the elections and counting out the votes. In addition to interests in government, Quintin liked basketball, and racing. Eric enjoyed singing and Forensics, and Rob was in Orchestra and Band.

Barbara Barnes did a good job with Social Relations. She knew how to follow through on assignments and helped make the year a success.

Business Manager, Meridee Freeman had a knack for getting work done. She put all her energy into accounts and kept bank statements balanced.

Studentbody Secretary Marcie Bowman was in charge of the Historians Book as well as taking notes for Student Government. She also did Highlights.

We had some great assemblies this year and a lot of credit goes to Teri Brandenburg, Assembly Chairperson, and her assistant, Tami Webb. They had pizz-az.

Junior Data

The 345 best students this year, sampled the Junior Class. The Class consisted of 169 boys and 176 girls. The Class of 82 ranged from a third with blue eyes and blonde hair, to a half with brown eyes and brown hair. The remaining third we won't talk about. Of the 345 total Juniors 269 of them could be found wearing jeans on any given day, except of course Wednesday, which is the unofficial dress day. We know these statistics to be correct, since over three-fourths of them dedicated during class near the common carpet or their hip pocket.

Below the portraits in this section, there are three columns of text, likely names or descriptions of the students, though the text is too small to read.

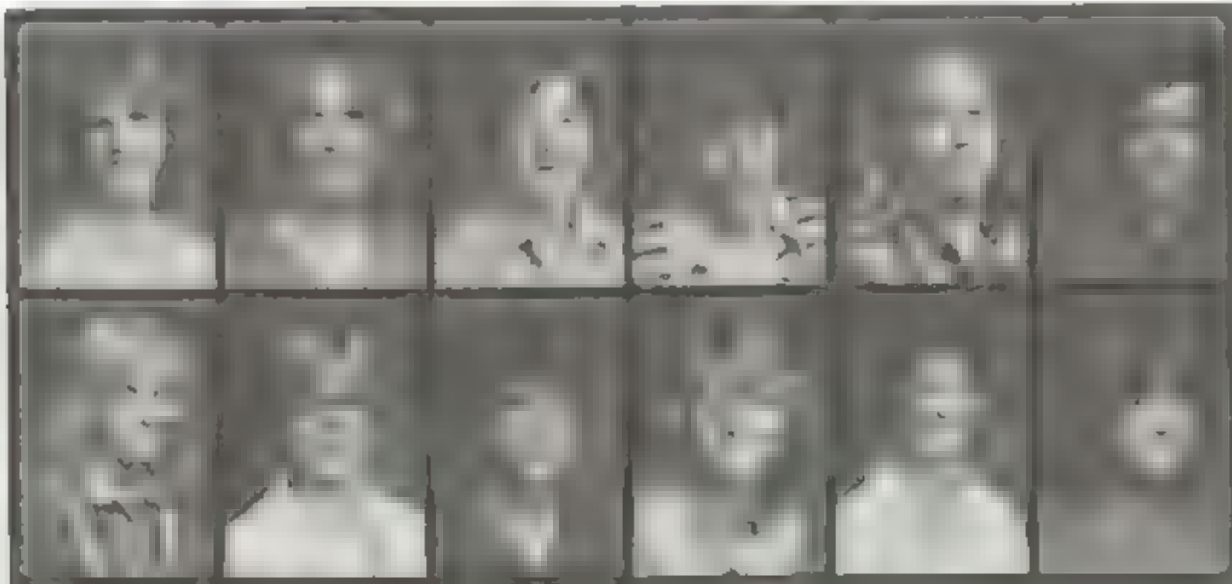

There is a small rectangular box containing text at the top right of the page, possibly a title or a short note.

Below the large group photo and the two individual portraits, there are several columns of text, likely a list of names or a detailed description of the group.

Advisor, Mrs. Warner

Seventeen Timpview girls worked long hours before, during and after school to finish their tailored wool suits for regional competition at Spanish Fork High School. This may not sound too impressive, but did you realize that at least 200 hours went into the making of every suit? Mrs. Warner observed that "It is nice to be able to make something that fits better and looks nicer than something you can buy." Trina Best won first and second places in the Senior division at region competition with her dress and coat that she designed. (She also took third place at state competition held at Hotel Utah.) Nicole Price won first place in the Junior division at region. Lisa Heckmann captured second, and Sara Midgley and Kris Nelson were third place.

PTA AND THE BOOSTERS

Besides asking for $1.00 for a lifetime membership the P. T. S. A. does hours and hours of volunteer help for the school. For example, they are the culprits that call your home to check up on your absences. They initiate funds for scholarships and grants for students. The P. T. S. A. is sorely needed especially in the era of belt tightening budgets in the educational system.

The boosters club was more than a group of old men wearing hunter orange windbreakers to sport activities. They helped defer some of the costs of the sport programs by sponsoring a pancake breakfast and selling their hunter orange jackets.

The Friends of Timpview is an organization headed by Carol Burr and Brent Beck. The organization was introduced at the beginning of the 1980-81 school year. It is comprised of people who donate a certain amount of money to the school. The money was used for scholarships, student and teacher seminars, and other items that were not covered in the regular school budget. The money is very beneficial to the school because of the limited budget. The Studentbody and the Administration are very appreciative of this support.

Timpview Comments Unfair

Editor, Herald

This is written in response to the letter written by Lyndon S. Vickery of Springville

He made insinuations about the students and particularly the basketball team at Timpview and I'd like to know just what he is talking about

After the championship game of the Holiday Classic the team went to their locker room where they had a meeting with the coaches lasting about 20 minutes, then showered with the players about 11:30 p.m.

What did Mr. Vickery see that the coaches didn't?

It is a popular notion that Timp-view but if he would use a little logic and look at the school boundary maps even Mr. Vickery could see that such is not really the case

We have occasion to attend many activities at Timpview throughout the year and without exception I have been impressed with the conduct of the students there

They are friendly, mature and fun. I really enjoy visiting their beautiful school and mingling with the students

Last Spring we attended a "roast" put on by the student body officers. That was a time then they could have put down other people or schools but they didn't. It was the funniest and cleverest thing I've seen for a long time. I thought it the Timpview High School student body

I resent Mr. Vickery's insinuations as I know the basketball team personally and I think they're great speak of. I think he should identify that or keep his mouth shut about the fine students of Timpview

EDITORS

Obviously, being an editor isn't all fun and games. In the course of a day, many odd things happen. Here is a day in the life of the yearbook editors. First, the editors wake up. Patty at 5:30, Ann at 6:30 a.m. (No, Patty is not vain; she has an early class.) Both of them madly rush to school because yearbook starts at 8:30. But before they can go into the yearbook room they, along with the rest of the staff, must sit in the hall for ten minutes. Once in the class room, Ann tries to organize (yell at) the photographers. It is a deadline day, no one goes to any classes, so the teachers hate the staff, but they're afraid to do anything for fear of having the staff retaliate by putting their baby pictures on the cover. Confusion begins to spread towards noon as the editors haven't had a chance to eat, and Tom spills orange juice on Ann. The layouts are found to be lost, then found, then lost again. Roger Layton is found asleep in the office and Ann tells him he's decadent. Patty cuts her fingernails with an exacto knife while under the influence of rubber cement fumes. Somebody tries typing with one finger but gives up when Ann calls them Neanderthal. Towards afternoon, the staff's attention turns to the obviously missing photographers. In the world of photographers Erik is unique. Erik can get a photo out of nothing and you can get nothing out of Erik's photos, but then you can get nothing out of Erik. About this time, Steve O. walks in with coffee and a Winchell's donut. When asked about the desperately needed photos he replies, "It's at home." Ann looks as though she is about to go profane or insane, but Mike Holm saves the hour by saying that Steve's a stud. Ann doesn't swear, she simply looks depressed and says, "My femurs hurt." Somebody decides to call Gary at Allen's Super Save for the fortieth time, where he is busy bagging milk on top of the bread. Anne Woodward is in the hall with whom? At 4:30 p.m. the work is finished but time is running out. The editors have only until 5:00 to get to the Post Office but, of course, Ann's car is out of gas, and once it's stopped it won't start again. Patty has an answer to the problem. She buys a Snickers and then calls her favorite mechanic, who comes and takes Ann, Patty and the yearbook to the Post Office, leaving Ann's car at the gas station. Upon arriving at the Post Office, they find to their dismay that they are six cents short. So, after much pleading, they talk the nice postman into giving them an IOU, which of course they paid back the next week. Then they returned home after a hard day at the office, knowing that all is well and that the yearbook will get done in spite of it all.

As editors, we would like to express our appreciation to those members of the staff who contributed of their time, energy, and themselves. Our deepest gratitude also goes to Mrs. Oldroyd and other faculty members for their help in any way. Linda Peterson deserves more thanks than anyone else. Whether it was staying at school till all hours of the night or day, or letting us invade her house for a party, she was always there and supported our efforts. Without her cooperation and advice, this book would not have been possible.

Sincerely,

and missing Patty Foster
